This program could not be more boneheaded, and how fitting that the state desires to be like what is becoming the worst state in the Union--burdened with crippling debt, a worthless governor, with a drop in population last year greater than any other state because people and companies are so eager to be out. THIS is what Delaware wishes to emulate? California cannot keep up with electric demand but . . . demands electric vehicles. Surely you're aware of earlier this year when it asked its citizens with electric cars to forego charging them because of electric blackouts?

People cannot afford EV's across the population. The goal of more EVs than gas-powered vehicles is simply not possible. This is utter insanity. ELECTRICITY IS DERIVED FROM COAL. Demanding Delawareans purchase and charge EVs encourages the production of coal-powered plants. Does anyone in Delaware government know this? Unbelievable.

Drop this foolishness now. We are not California. There is nothing admirable about California these days. This initiative is stupid.
